Risk Warning

The gearing effect of leveraging increases the level of risk associated with the underlying investments held within the life policy, in addition to the risks associated with the investment itself. A client's investment time horizon may be different from the term of the loan agreed by the Bank and the value of the underlying investment charged to the Bank as security for the Leveraging Loan Facility may fall as well as rise. For example in the event of a fall in the value of the underlying investment and the Bank exercising its call and/or close options then a client's Assets may be at risk of being sold in order to reduce or repay the loan and this action may result in a loss of capital to the client. If a client is in any doubt with regard to the risk factors involved with taking out a loan or the consequences of being unable to cover the interest payments or meet any requirements for additional security in respect of the loan they should contact their professional advisor before entering into any contractual obligations.
